

CFC Translates to “Creamed for Charity”

U.S. Customs and Border Protection employees assigned to the Houston Service Port held a CFC fundraiser on October 26. A baked potato lunch was served and donations were gladly accepted for the spuds loaded with all the trimmings, beverages and dessert.

But before everyone partook of the delicious food, attendees had a chance to bid at the “Pie in the Face” auction. An opportunity to chunk a pie at Supervisory Import Specialist Kristopher Burton was auctioned off first. Kristopher is a really nice guy, and folks were rather shy about bidding. But they eventually got into the spirit of things and cinched the deal.

Assistant Port Director David McGurk was next, and by that time folks had become less shy about bidding. He egged the crowd on, and as the money kept piling up, so did the amount of whipped cream to be tossed!

A fun and delicious time was had by all. The total amount raised at the fundraiser was $4,157.00 (seven CFC pledges were received).

Special thanks to CFC Campaign Coordinator Linda Rossini and her Key workers Martin Acosta, Jacqueline Baker, Mary Pugh, and Gloria Walker, and Entry Branch Chief Gwen Sanders. Gwen will be on the auction block for the same treatment on November 9th at the soup-and-grilled-cheese fundraiser!
